

PROFILE

I'm 19 and I've been working in AI for the last 18 months. By October 2025 I was creative director on a client account at a US AI agency, making ads for live Meta campaigns, and now I run my own studio making campaign stills, fashion film and ads. What I do best is extract a brand's visual identity and build a repeatable system around it, so every asset is recognisably that brand. Alongside it I've worked in a high-end restaurant kitchen since I was 17, where I learned to hold a standard under pressure and work as part of a team, and I still work best when it's all written down and I can see what I'm achieving. Now I want to grow on the business side: working within a creative team, understanding how projects run from brief to delivery, and building towards running creative projects and the people on them.

EXPERIENCE

- Founder · Forvr Studios2026 – present

Reading · independent AI studio, solo

 - Built the studio from nothing: the name, the design language, the visual identity and the site, forvr.org.
 - Built my own outreach system with Claude Code that finds and qualifies brands every morning and lines up the messages and follow-ups, then pitched those brands myself.
 - Run @forvr.cr, the studio's Instagram, on a weekly plan, testing what brings reach and what brings leads.
 - Landed my first paying client, PHLIP, a London streetwear brand ahead of its launch, and have been building a network of people across the industry.
 - Make all the work myself, building a visual language for each brand and its products as reference sheets, so every frame in a set stays on brand.
- Creative Director · HypervailOct 2025 – Apr 2026

Remote · US AI-native marketing agency

 - Creative director on a US pet-grooming brand's account: made about 50 video ads for its live Meta campaigns, up to four a week, to a weekly deadline.
 - Took every ad from concept to finished file on my own: angles, hooks and scripts, then AI-generated video and images, edit, captions, music and sound.
 - Built one visual language for the account, so story, UGC-style and product ads all came at the product differently but every one still read as the brand.
 - Kept the pace with a written weekly process: a process written down beats one held in your head.
 - Also worked on a second account, a US womenswear brand, putting its graphic tees on generated models.
- Orwells · restaurant, Henley-on-Thames2024 – present

Co Social Media ManagerAug 2026 – present

 - Run the restaurant's Instagram alongside the kitchen, from coming up with the content ideas to planning, shooting and editing them: over 250,000 views in the first month.
- Head Chef, Streetfood · Thameside Social pop-upJun – Jul 2026

 - Ran the street food at a month-long riverside pop-up, from writing the menu through prep to service.
 - Led the team through every service, keeping everyone talking during the rush so the food went out fast and to the same standard, which is where I learned to lead people under real time pressure.
- Pastry Chef2024 – present

 - Started at 17 in a high-end kitchen, making the same dish to the same standard every service, under time pressure. It's where my eye for detail comes from.
 - Worked as part of a brigade, communicating across the kitchen during service and taking feedback on the spot.

SKILLS

- Creative

Art direction, design and visual language, brand identity, campaign stills, fashion film, ad concepts, hooks and scripts
- Production

Product-accurate generation, reference sheets, image-to-video, multi-shot continuity, editing, captions, sound, Photoshop compositing and retouching
- Systems

Repeatable systems that keep every asset on brand: templates and prompting standards a team can run, Weavy workflows, Claude Code pipelines

TOOLS

- AI

Midjourney, Nano Banana Pro, GPT Image, Higgsfield, Weavy, Kling, Seedance, Veo, Sora. Comfortable with any generative image or video model
- Post

Photoshop, CapCut, DaVinci Resolve, Figma, Claude Code, Notion

EDUCATION

- A-Levels

Business, Media, Economics · ABB